dei colli ripani

C'è terra e c'è vino.

The Colli Ripani have their winery. Just as the Winery is made unique by the Colli Ripani. You are in Le Marche region, on the hills that follow the river valleys to the Adriatic, with the Apennines behind you. It is here, at an altitude of 494 metres, incredibly close to the coast, that you'll find one of the best known and most productive wineries of the region. La Cantina dei Colli Ripani.

The Colli Ripani winery is a co-operative made up of more than 330 local producers with a profound desire to protect and enhance their wine production by safeguarding the lands that give life to the native Sangiovese, Montepulciano, Pecorino and Passerina wines.

Philosophy

Our people's love for our roots and work has made Cantina dei Colli Ripani the guardian not only of a great product – with careful selection and an innate respect for the rhythm of nature – but an invaluable land: the Colli Ripani. An extraordinary landscape shaped by the work of our people, who successfully combine the culture of wine with the joy of togetherness. The Winery has made this universal and unique promise its vision and mission, celebrating the value of sheer simplicity.

In every step of its work, the bond between the Winery and the land of the Colli Ripani grows stronger. Thanks to its location, the Winery does not have to go far to fulfil its clear commitment: to fill your glass not just with wine, but with an unforgettable story. Roots, passion, uniqueness, commitment and respect are just some of the watchwords of the Cantina dei Colli Ripani. Through our cooperation, we are able to convey the value of the land through our vineyards: a thick and dense story, much like the landscape itself, which our members help make new and special every day.

Collections and products The Winery's story began in 1969 and we saw the fruits of the earth turn into wine for the first time in 1977 – the year of our first vinification. This is the inspiration behind the 'settantase77e Collection, which is dedicated to the hospitality and catering sector. Our wine repertoire also features the Colli Ripani Collection, made up of ten wines which together tell the story of the land where we first began winemaking; the Organic Collection reflects our true philosophy, using grapes grown with respect for the environment and processed using renewable energy; then the 508® Collection, a strictly local selection par excellence. The light and summery Bollicine Collection features young, fresh wines. The Winery's oenological panorama is completed with Il vicolo, a pink wine, Anima Mundi, the Passerina passito and Grotte di Santità – Spumante Bio Ancestrale 100% Pecorino. The journey then continues with olive oil (including organic oil), barley coffee, jam and honey – all products underpinned by the commitment and passion of our members, enabling them to play a close and active part in their winery. This broad and inclusive vision also includes the practical 3L Bag in Box packaging which protects the wine from light and oxidation. The latest addition is the Belvedere Collection, dedicated to large-scale retail.

Projects

For some years now, the Winery has been pursuing a project to spread the cultural heritage of the Marche region at the dining table. Pairings of traditional cuisine and native wines are featured on T-shirts, pins and beach towels. Ciauscolo and Pecorino, Brodetto and Passerina or ½ Gazzosa ½ Falerio, to give just one example, have also inspired the composition of dedicated packaging with a typically Marche flair.

The Winery's commitment to the local area is also demonstrated through its partnership with the Grottammare branch of the Anffas association. The Colli Ripani x Anffas Tile was created with the children from the Clay Workshop of the Il Faro del Piceno project. The tile is handcrafted from clay (measuring around 10x10cm) and re-imagines the Winery's trademark by enhancing its plurality and daily life.

Markets

With 800 hectares of cultivated land and 65,000 hectolitres of wine produced each year, the Cantina dei Colli Ripani is successfully branching into foreign markets. Its wines reach Europe through its online shop, together with a sales network covering the US, Canada, Russia, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and the Asian markets of China and Japan. In Italy our wines can be purchased from 10 select stores and through a commercial network spread throughout Italy.
